Wm Lloyd Garrison, Esq

My dear Sir,

In 1853, my husband addressed two letters to you, which were published in the Liberator of July of that year. They were upon the subject of how a conscientious <sup>man</sup> could vote & hold office under a Constitution that allowed Slavery. I am preparing his political papers for publication, and having lost my copy by sending it to one of the publishing houses at the time I published his Memoir, I do not know how

To replace it except by applying to you. I presume you have more than one file of the Liberator, and if so, will you let me have those two letters? I will endeavor to restore them to you, but this I cannot actually promise, printers are so careless of such things.

Excuse the liberty I take in making this request.

With very high regard,

Yours Mary Mann

(Widow of Horace Mann.)
